A duplex penthouse in Kings Hills, Marbella Golden Mile offering 2 bedrooms and 2 bathrooms, arranged over an entrance level with open-plan kitchen, dining and living area plus guest bedroom with direct access to a terrace featuring a private pool, BBQ and outdoor dining, while the upper level is dedicated to a master suite opening onto a second terrace with private jacuzzi, all framed by mountain views and defined by refined interiors with bespoke lighting, strong architectural lines and curated artwork. What stands out is not just the layout, but the control of space. The living area doesn't compete with the terrace, it extends into it. Glass opens, boundaries disappear, and suddenly the question becomes: inside or out? The kitchen is deliberate, sculptural, anchored by stone and wood, designed for use rather than display. Upstairs, the master suite is treated as a retreat, not an afterthought: walk-in wardrobe, a bathroom that reads more like a private spa, and direct access to a terrace where the jacuzzi faces open views rather than neighbouring walls. Two levels, two distinct atmospheres. Entertain below, withdraw above. It's efficient, but also considered. Kings Hills sits quietly within the Sierra Blanca foothills, where security and distance are assumed rather than advertised. You are minutes from the Golden Mile, yet removed from its pace. Golf courses, ■international ■schools, ■and ■the coastline ■are ■all ■within ■reach, ■but not ■within ■sightline. It ■suits ■those who ■want ■proximity ■without ■exposure—those who prefer ■arrival ■to ■be ■intentional, ■not ■incidental.
